

About Page

My name is Carlos Velasco, and I am a sinner at San Francisco State University. This is my third year here at San Francisco State University, and my major is Computer Science. The languages I have worked with is C++. C, Java, and Java Script. I do not have any knowledge of Python language. I have made apps in IOS and I have my own website design company that I partner with my Father's Graphic design company. I have sold three professional websites to three professional local businesses in San Louis Obispo, California. When it comes to a group project I can do either back-end or front-end work, but I prefer the back front-end work because I love to do designs and customizing the project.
